Picture Books

All the World by Elizabeth Garton Scanlon

Archie's Vacation by Domenica More Gordon

Archie the dog is a sartorial wonder, making the most dashing clothes for his delighted clients. And he's ready for some well-deserved time off. But, alas!, he worries—what will happen if it rains on his trip? What if he gets sick? It's that age-old worry of dogs everywhere—what should I pack? Archie is a mess trying to pack just about everything he may need. The pull of this nearly wordless book is that it allows the reader to wonder what they would bring on a trip with Archie—until a double-spread ends the conundrum...with a bang! Young readers will love helping Archie prepare for his vacation.

Locomotive by Brian Floca

This 2014 Caldecott Award and Sibert Honor winner truly makes Westward expansion come to vivid life—as it relays in bold, oversized format the creation of the Transcontinental Railroad. But more than just extraordinarily atmospheric muted pictures of steam-belching machines, the impeccably researched book is the tale of a family heading West in 1869—their travels and trials and the brilliant sights and sounds. The sounds come to life with oversized words in powerful, well-chosen fonts, and the fine prose aptly illustrates the tale it tells. A presentation as powerful as the locomotive itself.
