Keeping the Castle by Patrice Kindl

17 year old Althea has found that her family's fate rests on her, and the profitable marriage she must make to save them for the poor house and prevent the loss of the beloved family home. Luckily, a handsome and wealthy young man has just moved in to the next estate over, and Althea just knows she can capture his heart. In the style of Jane Austen, "Keeping the Castle" is a light, fizzy romance that readers old and young will enjoy.

Kill Switch by Chris Lynch

Lies, Knives, and Girls in Red Dresses by Ron Koertge

Koertge retells 23 fairy tales in free verse; full of satirical humor and the dark edge of the originals, these aren't the stories Disney told you.

The Little Woods by McCormick Templeman

The List by Siobhan Vivan

Long Lankin by Lindsey Barraclough

"Beware of Long Lankin that lives in the moss," says the old ballad. Long Lankin has long been the ghost story surrounding the small village of Byers Guerdon, even if his name is long forgotten. When Cora and Mimi are sent to stay with their aunt, their presence awakens the old spirit, and it is up to Cora to figure out how to stop him from taking Mimi, as he's taken so many other children over the years. A wonderfully creepy debut.
